

Mokena Auto Owners To Petition Village Board To Abolish 1929 $5 per Year Auto License Fees

Automobile owners in the limits of the village of Mokena are opposed to the present ordinance requiring them to pay a special vehicle or auto license of $5 per year to the village.

Primarily this ordinance was passed for the purpose of raising a fund for repairing and maintaining the streets in the village. The auto owners claim that there is no separate fund into which the money collected yearly from these licenses is placed and that there is nothing to show that this money is used for road purposes only. This money being placed in the general fund can be used for any purpose, but if it were placed in a special road fund it could only be used for that purpose.

Another bone of contention is that the annual license fee of $5 applies to 5 ton trucks as well as a small run about. It is charged that this is wholly unfair inasmuch as the trucks use the village streets daily and tend a great deal more to wear it out than the light car which only uses the streets a few days in the whole week and often times not that often.

Front street has been given practically all the attention for years and the side streets have been sorely neglected, the old cry of the village board being that they are broke and have no money to do the needed work. In a number of instances residents have had to club together and raise hundreds of dollars and have the street in front of their properties repaired at their own expense and still at the same time they were paying their special auto license of $5 per year for the purpose of having the village do the work they were doing and paying for.

The money that has been spent on front street for the past ten years has run into thousands of dollars and yet this street is one mass of chuck holes. Hundreds of dollars are spent each year in patching it and still the street is full of holes.

The street is higher than the sidewalks and during a heavy thaw or rain the side walks are under water. If the street were cut down and the excess material placed on the back streets and then given a good dressing of crushed stone and screening rolled down and oiled, then covered with coarse sand the same as the roads in the Joliet parks are built, the front street would be smooth and in passable condition. The stone can be secured free from the state, the only cost being the freight and spreading of it.

Another objection raised is the method of oiling the village streets. Last summer the street was scraped and all the loose dirt and stone was allowed to lay on the street and then the oil was applied. The oil could not penetrate thru the dust with the result that as soon as traffic began moving the oil stuck to the wheels with the result that gobs of dust mixed with oil clung to the wheels and left barren spots in the streets. The streets should have been free from dust before the oil was applied. Then the oil coating should have been covered with coarse sand applied the same way as is being done in the park systems and streets in nearby towns and Joliet which prevents the oil from being picked up.

Edward Schenkel has been circulating a petition to secure the signatures of every auto owner in the village of Mokena, which petition requests the village board to abolish the vehicle tag tax for 1929 and further states that if this is not done the signers intention is to legally fight the auto license tax.

Mr. Schenkel has stated that only 60 per cent of the auto owners in the village have to be secured as signers of the petition but that he is confident he will secure 100 per cent. Mr. Schenkel was a former member of the village board and says he always has been opposed to the village auto license ordinance. He further states that if it has to be he will fight the case alone to have this ordinance rescinded.

When questioned about this matter, Alderman August Hentsch said that the board can show that every cent of the license money collected last year and in previous years has been spent for road purposes and that it has been far from enough to cover this expense and that many hundreds of dollars had to be added to the amount derived from auto license fees.

The petition in question will be presented to the village board at their regular meeting, Wednesday night, January 30.

Nicholas Lautter of Mokena Passes Away, Age 75 yrs.

Nicholas Lautter, 75 years, widely known resident of Homer and of Mokena in latter years, died Saturday morning, January 5th at 10:25 o'clock following several weeks illness which began with the flu.

Nicholas Lautter was born in Frankfort township March 15, 1853, and resided in this section all his life. He was educated in the public schools of Frankfort township. He followed the pursuit of stock raiser and farmer until he retired from active agricultural work in 1912, since which time he made his home in Mokena.

Mr. Lautter has been prominent in the affairs of his locality and remained actively interested in public life, political and economic affairs. He served as highway commissioner and school director in Homer township for many years and also served as thistle commissioner of Frankfort township for one term.

His last years were largely spent in keeping himself informed on all national, state, county, township and village movements and there was perhaps no greater authority on these current matters than Nicholas Lautter.

Mr. Lautter's character is best demonstrated in a moment's glance into his family life which has been marked with his affection for wife, children and grand children. This same quality of character sought larger channels of usefulness in the public life of the deceased and his name ever stood for honesty, straightforwardness and for square dealing to all of his many neighbors, friends and fellow citizens.

In 1880 he was united in marriage with Miss Florence Sayers. To this happy wedlock were born six children, three sons and three daughters, five of whom survive, besides the widow. The children are: Mrs. Ella Cooper, Mrs. Viola Hostert, of Mokena; Mrs. Elise Haley, Kempton, Ill.; Arthur and Charles of Homer township; nine grand children; two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Volck, Orland township and Mrs. Caroline Marti, Frankfort township; one brother, Daniel of Homer township, also survive. One son Lester preceded the father in death ten years ago.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the late home to the St. John Evangelical church at two o'clock. Rev. W. J. Cramer, pastor of this church and Rev. Glen T. Beatty, of the M. E. church, officiated.

Wedded 50 Years, Tinley Couple Taken By Death Twenty-two Hours Apart

Mr. and Mrs. John Klepper, Sr., pioneer residents of Tinley Park who had journeyed on life's pathway together for fifty years, were parted only for a few hours by death last week. Mr. Klepper passed away on Thursday January 3rd at 6 p. m., and Mrs. Klepper answered the final summons on Friday afternoon, January 4th at 4 p. m. Mrs. Klepper did not know that her husband had died and it was only a matter of a few hours before she joined him in death.

Both were stricken with pneumonia a few weeks ago and were taken to the home of their daughter, Mrs. Fred Hick. A nurse was in attendance and everything humanely possible was done to stay the hand of death, but without avail.

John Klepper, Sr., was born in Frankfort, Illinois, November 30th, 1847. On December 19, 1873 he was united in marriage with Miss Caroline Hacker. This union was blessed with nine children of whom five preceded their parents in death. He attained the age of 81 years, 1 month and 4 days.

Mrs. Klepper nee Hacker was born in Mecklenburg, Germany, on August 6, 1850. She attained the age of 78 years, 4 months and 29 days.

Mr. and Mrs. Klepper resided in Tinley Park for many years and had a wide circle of acquaintances. They are survived by two sons, John and Henry, two daughters, Mrs. Ameda Hick and Mrs. Minnie Mager, nine grandchildren, all of Tinley Park. Mr. Klepper is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Baumann of Frankfort and Mrs. Klepper by a sister, Mrs. Maria Muff.

The double funeral service was held Monday afternoon at the Zion Lutheran church, Rev. Albert Budenhagen officiating. Burial in the Tinley Park cemetery. There were twelve pall bearers.

File Demurrers To Injunction Suit

Demurrers to a bill for injunction asking that the county board be restrained from delivering $1,750,000 in highway bonds to H. C. Speer & Sons company and to William R. Compton, were filed Monday by the bond houses and the county board of Will County.

A hearing on the demurrers is expected within two weeks. The defendants are eager for an early decision, in order that the vast road improvement program may begin.

Both demurrers charge that the complainants have not made out such a case as will entitle them to any discovery or relief in a court of equity. The demurrers were filed by Donovan, Bray and Gray, attorneys for the bonding houses, and Hjalmar Rehn, state's attorney, representing the county board.

Since there was no hearing on the bill during the December term of court, the work will be halted until March 1st.

The contention of the defendants, the county board and the bonding houses is that the contract awarded to the bonding houses was legal, and that it is not necessary for the board to advertise for bids. The complainants, a committee of taxpayers headed by Colonel Fred Bennett, claim that the action of the board was contrary to law and to the interest of the taxpayers.

Machine Guns Found on Trucks Seized at Palos

Five motor truck loads of booze being transported from Lemont to Chicago were seized at 123rd and Keane avenue, Palos Park Monday night by a force of twenty-five state highway police and federal prohibition agents. ## Arrested For Speeding on Icy Pavement

Late Wednesday afternoon a big touring car speeded thru Tinley Park and narrowly missed hitting some school children who were crossing Oak Park Avenue. Officer George Smith pursued the speeding car on his motorcycle and arrested the driver, a young fellow of about 19 years of age. With him was a girl. They were brought back to Tinley Park and the girl asked permission of officer Smith to phone her father in Chicago of the scrape she was in and ask him to straighten matters out. Speeding on an icy pavement thru the village made the youthful offender's offense doubly serious.

Elmore's Booming Sub-division

made by the county board with the bond houses, the county would receive a premium of $68,000 thru the sale of the bonds. This agreement provided that the entire bond issue should be sold at an interest rate of 4 3/4 per cent. The county would receive 30 per cent of the money this year, 35 per cent in 1930, and 35 per cent in 1932.

For the money held by the bond house the county was to receive 2 per cent.

The objectors claim that this agreement would cause the taxpayers to suffer a monetary loss, and was not the best possible sale of the bonds.

SYNOPSIS

Webster Brond is serving as a scout and spy for the army under General Braddock preparing for the advance on Fort Duquesne. He has just returned to Alexandria from a visit to the fort, where, posing as a Frenchman, he has secured valuable information. Braddock, bred to European warfare, fails to realize the importance of the news. Brond is sent back to Fort Duquesne, also bearing a message to George Croghan, English emissary among the Indians. Brond joins his friend and fellow scout, Round Paw, Indian chief, and they set out. On the way they fall in with a typical backwoodsman, Balsar Cromit, who joins them. The party encounters a group of settlers threatening a young girl, Elsie Dinwold, whom they accuse of witchcraft. Brond saves her from them. The girl disappears. Webster delivers his message to Croghan. Young Col. George Washington accuses Brond from bullying English soldiers. He warns a bully in a fight, and finds Elsie Dinwold. Brond is sent on a scouting expedition to Fort Duquesne, and encounters a band of Braddock's scouts. Later Brond and his companions find a French scouting party besieging an old cabin.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

Before I could outguess him, he was up to one of his tricks. Suddenly ceasing his resistance he flopped on his back and carried me with him but managed to escape the grip of my legs and draw up his knees. Then with a violent thrust of his arms and a surge of his legs he sent me flying over his head.

"Put a spell on him! Witch him!" screamed Cromit's voice.

I leaped erect and whirled and set myself to meet the next onset. The force of my fall blurred my vision for a moment, and the Frenchman might have had me had he not paused to jerk a pistol from his belt. He risked all on a bullet, and the weapon missed fire. I ducked the flying pistol and leaped upon him, incited to greater effort by the stinging bump on the top of my head. We crashed together and hugged and tugged like two bears.

I picked him up bodily and buried him against the logs and he fell to the floor as limp as a sack of meal. But I would have no more tricks, and when he struck I was upon him again. I remember hearing a shrill cry, but there was no time to calm the girl. I mauled the Frenchman about for some seconds before I discovered he was inert and offering no resistance.

As I drew back, thinking I had broken his neck, I was conscious of Cromit puffing and lamenting:

"Plumb forgot you wanted the rogue alive."

My man had no more fight in him and I took time to glance at my friend. He was leaning against the wall and mopping back his bristling hair with hands that smeared his face a deep red. On the floor at his feet was the Indian, killed in a horrible fashion.

"Lor's me! But that was a wring worth the fuss," Cromit panted. "Mebbe it was the spell she put on him when I yelled out."

"H—H! With your bare hands!" I dully exclaimed.

He proudly held them up for me to admire.

"He was mortal slippery even for a serpent," faintly replied Cromit. "Mebbe if she hadn't witched him—"

"Where is she?" I wildly cried, brushing the sweat from my eyes and quite forgetting the Frenchman as I stared at her empty blanket and to the open door.

Cromit staggered to the door and at once emitted a terrible howl and grappled with another Indian who suddenly filled the doorway. I heard the dull thud of an ax and my friend went down on his knees.

"The bone-breaking man is mad from fighting," said Round Paw, the Onondaga.

Cromit, only slightly stunned by the flat of the ax, slowly gained his feet and stared stupidly at the Indian and rubbed his head ruefully. The Indian sighted my Frenchman and with a whoop would have jumped upon him had I not pushed him back.

"He is my prisoner. He goes to Braddock alive!"

He turned away and beheld the savage on the floor. With a yelp of amazement he bent over him and investigated the nature of the mortal wounds. Straightening he lifted his ax in salute to Cromit, then drove it into a log and cried:

"Yo-hah! This is a very brave man who walks through the land with us. They say he has killed a man with his hands. They say his name will be known to many nations, that he shall be called 'Royaner!'"

"We waste time. There is work for the man of the Wolf. Find me the white girl whom we found in this cabin. It is the girl I fought for at Will's creek, the one who left Der Hexenkopf with us. She was frightened by the fighting and ran away. She must be brought back. And your white brother's legs are weak. She is out there in the woods. She will be caught by those Huron devils. Get her and bring her back if you call me brother."

"She must run like a deer to overtake the Hurons. They have met Round Paw. They say they lost four men to him alone." And he proudly pulled a mass of hair from his belt. "And there are two dead at the beginning of the woods and one dead outside and one inside this cabin."

"The witch-girl has gone and has taken the light rifle dropped by the Frenchman," declared Cromit. "But she was honest enough to leave my good long rifle."

"She is honest. My onrenda tells me not to travel the same path," the Onondaga insisted.

"Then I must go, and my eyes are not sharp like the Wolf man's, nor are my legs strong. And let it be remembered when you would pass me a pipe through the camp smoke."

With a grunt he ran from the cabin. Cromit and I endeavored to learn something from the Frenchman.

"Monsieur, I am a victim of war. But it is all for France," he told me.

"How many were with you?" I asked.

He smiled through his bloody lips and mocked:

"There was another Frenchman with me, who is worth a hundred red men. He will be here soon with some of his children."

I pointed to the dead warrior on the floor and asked:

"Shall I tell my friend to make you talk?"

He gave a look and was unable to restrain a shudder. Then with a shrug of his shoulders he said:

"A Beauvais can die even like that. I compliment monsieur on his French."

Cromit edged nearer, working his gory fingers. I waved him back and spoke in French for my captive's benefit, saying:

"We will leave it for Braddock to make him talk. He has many ironquils with his army, and they have curious ways with wayward tongues."

"It will be interesting, monsieur—for your ironquils. Let us go to them and learn if they can persuade me."

Confound the fellow! One cannot hold a mean grudge against a brave man.

"We will start very soon. Cromit, reload the rifles."

The Frenchman glanced about the room and muttered:

"There was another here, a youth. My children trailed him here after he killed one of our Hurons. He made a very pretty fight, but we should have dug him out if you men had not come."

Cromit called from the door: "Here comes Round Paw. Coming alone. And he ain't in any hurry."

Round Paw glided into the cabin and confirmed what my prisoner had said about his red allies being in a panic. The girl's trail led to the east. He had followed it but a short distance. Beauvais glared at the Onondaga's girl and muttered:

"So that is why they do not stop their foolish running! What a pity! Poor Dupuy!" In answer to my questioning look he sadly explained. "The brown hair hanging over your dead friend's hip. Until very recently it was worn by my good friend Georges Dupuy."

"You found a dead Frenchman?" I asked Round Paw.

He touched the hank of brown hair. Beauvais went on. "He received the Holy Eucharist before we set out. He told me he should never see the Beautiful River again. Poor Georges. I laughed at him and said it was a sick fancy. Voila! A red savage wears his hair in his belt."

I held a council of war with my friends and we decided to travel over the back trail for a few miles and look for signs of the Dinwold woman. I told Cromit he must take the prisoner back, also a verbal report from me. He strongly objected to leaving us, but a compromise was reached by his agreeing to conduct the prisoner as far as the road-builders' camp, where a guard could take him back to headquarters.

Beauvais volunteered the information that his red force was composed of Potawatomi, and that he had had difficulty in inducing them to scout so far from the fort.

Round Paw did not like my plan, and insisted we should be picking off more of the enemy while fear was gripping them and while they had no French leaders. But I was suspecting his sincerity in searching for the Dinwold girl. The idea was fixed in his pagan mind that she possessed the evil powers of all sorts of monstrous beings—honnatkon—and it was very possible he had not looked for her beyond the edge of the forest.

Love and Youth Can Always "Find a Way"

So we set forth and traveled until sundown. After the first mile the Frenchman gave his parole not to attempt to escape until I had turned him over to Cromit's care, and I released his arms and we fared pleasantly. That night I drilled Cromit on the few points I desired him to report, and made him repeat it until he had it straight enough. Especially did I warn against the proposed road over Will's mountain, and urged that the valley road be followed. In the morning we cooked squirrels and turkey, and Beauvais ate heartily. When I came to tie his hands his spirits fell and he offered:

"I will renew my parole, monsieur, until monsieur of the Terrible Hands has delivered me into the custody of somebody else."

I gladly accepted it, and explained to Cromit the man had passed his word not to attempt escape until turned over to the road-builders. Cromit was inclined to be incredulous and insisted he would tie the fellow up at night. I explained this condition to Beauvais, who made a wry face but submitted with what good grace he could muster. We separated with a courteous exchange of compliments; then the Onondaga and I once more turned back toward Fort Duquesne.

The girl's trail was easy to follow when we left the cabin, and for a fourth of a mile Round Paw had called my attention to slight signs. Once she had entered the forest she had regained her wood-sense and had concealed her trail with consummate cunning, which meant some deep purpose I had not suspected. However, it was too late to look for her now, for Braddock's business could not wait.

We found three hoops hanging on a bush and I dared not look at them closely until the Onondaga pronounced the half in each to be that of a white man. From what I learned later I believe these to be scalp taken from Chapman's road-builders. We skirted the opening where we had rescued the girl and crossed Castelman's river, which was not more than ankle deep, and soon entered upon high and very wet glades.

Our plan was to scout to the Great crossing of the Youghiogony that day, a distance of seventeen miles. This section of the country was excellent for surprise attacks and skirmishes. I feared that once the army had advanced this far it would be surrounded day and night by a cloud of invisible foes.

That night we made the Great crossing and camped on the west bank

CHAPTER V

Wampum!

The rain was beating down on our hiding place when we awoke in the morning. Once we were soaked to the skin we accepted the weather philosophically, even welcomed it; for it reduced the danger of being surprised by the enemy's Indians.

We traveled slowly and cautiously, as our field of vision was limited and blurred by the storm, and there was danger of stumbling upon some Huron or Ottawa camp. With our rifles and Onondaga's bow-string carefully protected from the dampness, we spent a day in covering a few miles. The Onondaga was impatient to make a swift march of it, but my plans demanded that we should not only arrive at Duquesne but arrive untouched by suspicion.

During our second night in hiding I perfected my scheme for entering the fort unquestioned. I proposed to enter Allaquippa's town in the role of a Frenchman. Her devotion to the English was well known, therefore my presence would not be welcomed by her, but her aversion would all the better establish my status among any fort Indians who might be there for the purpose of seducing her Delaware.

From Allaquippa's town I would make for Duquesne. This line of procedure made it imperative that we should not be chased by any enemy scouting party into the Delaware village.

We were following the river and aiming to make Stewart's crossing, eight miles from the hills. Half the distance had been covered when our advance was halted by the crash of a smooth-bore at one side. The heavy ball cut a small branch several feet overhead. I glimpsed a bronzed figure and fired. We advanced warily, and I was chagrined to find I had missed, for there was no trace of the Indian and no blood marks.

Young Lady's Elbows No Longer A Hat Rack

"I just couldn't resist any longer telling you of your wonderful medicine, Milks Emulsion. I have been constipated as long as I can remember. Had typhoid fever when I was eight years old and since then my bowels haven't moved freely. Doctors have given me bowel medicine and I have taken pills, salts, castor oil, and everything a person could think of. They didn't do me any good whatever. Now, whenever I hear anyone say they are constipated, I immediately tell them of Milks Emulsion. I have taken about 12 large bottles, not all of them regular. Now I keep Milks Emulsion in the house and take it regular. I have taken so much medicine that I thought it was all alike. I had a hollow complexion, no color, and felt miserable all the time; but now I have the color of health, and health is something I wouldn't exchange with anyone for a fortune. I wouldn't take ten times the price I paid for Milks Emulsion for the results I have obtained."

"I am 19 years old and weigh 105 pounds. Have gained 5 pounds since taking your medicine and am still gaining. My face is round and my arms are getting round. Before, people used to hang their hats on my elbows, thinking they were hatracks. Now I am going to keep on with Milks Emulsion until I weigh 125 pounds."

"I mentioned your Emulsion to two doctors. They both admitted it was good, and no one knows better than I that it is not only good, but wonderful."

"You may publish this letter if you wish and anyone that wants to ask me about your medicine may do so. I promise to answer every letter. In fact, I couldn't do enough for Milks Emulsion to repay them for what their medicine has done for me. I remain, very respectfully yours, ROSEMOND BOWER, Frontenac, Kan."

HATS NOW PRETTILY FEMININE; HOUSE FROCKS AND APRONS

More of the Feminine Touch.

HERE'S a good test of the becomingness of your latest hat. If your friends greet you with: "What have you been doing to yourself? You are looking younger every day," rest assured that the new hat is a success. If, however, well—there are no "ifs and buts" about it, because the array of cunning little hats which are crowding to the fore for midwinter wear cannot do otherwise than flatter, for they are piquant, colorful and carry that touch of individuality which intricate design and elaborate hand work always impart.

In the designing of matinee, dine and dance hats which fashion is spotlighting at present, milliners have come to the rescue of women who are reacting against being continuously hatted in simple felts, in that they are designing many fetching models which glory in ingenious hand work and intricate design.

And have you noticed that subtle change which is taking place in the lines of the new hats? In brief it is this: They fit as snug as snuggles can be across the back of the neck and when it comes to the ears, flaps and tabs and widening brims quite conceal them, after which the line somehow contrives to lift off the brow, with the effect that the face seems framed by the hat. There is a feeling, too, in many instances that the hat is being worn back on the head somewhat after the manner of a baby's tight-fitting bonnet.

The hats in the picture delicately hint at the new bonnetlike face-framing tendencies, but not to the extent that some of the recent felts are carrying the idea.

In this group of winsome midseason models lace, metal fabrics and glittering beadwork together with rich embroidery do their share in glorifying the art of millinery and in bringing the hat-beautiful back to a program of the prettily feminine.

It's the bit of lace which flares a gorgeous gold-embroidered and beaded side crown band.

Was there ever so cozy a time for sewing and planning one's clothes for the coming months as now. The very tasks against which we rebel in springtime when birds and flowers and blue skies say come, come, come! are welcomed as a privilege and a joy while midwinter holds the earth within its icy grasp—that is, if you live in the North, and if not, well—it's a good time to get the family sewing out of the way in any event.

So let's take inventory of what's needed in the way of sewing for the future. House dresses and aprons! There's "always room for one more" in every wardrobe. So why not add to the list a cunning hand-painted simple little frock like the one in the picture? The wonderful thing about paints and dyes these days is that they are so processed that they launder. That's why designers are willing to turn to hand painting as a mode of decorating washable materials.

One could buy a few yards of rayon crepe or washable silk and rayon mixture or, say, cotton broadcloth in some pretty shade, or pongee would be ideal for the making of a dainty frock such as is shown here. The design which borders the hemline is hand painted. Note that it is copied from the decoration on the Hungarian water pitcher which this charming young woman is holding in her hands for us to see.

If one prefers to arrive at the patterning in some way other than painting, hand-worked applique is suggested.

la Dutch bonnet fashion which adds such a captivating note to the first hat in this group.

The manner in which the gold and silver brocade is knotted and draped on the hat in the center at the top is very effective.

That very lovely little bonnet at the top to the right is of very sheer gold lace. The brim is left transparent, the lace being stretched over gold cloth for the crown.

The group concludes with an exquisite satin model elaborated with a makes up charmingly into aprons. The pretty pattern in the picture is suggested. Both the cherries and the leaves are button-hole stitched all around, and all edges of the apron are bound with the red. The diagram to the right is a guide for cutting the bib and shoulder straps which cross in the back as shown in the little sketch in the oval. Measure off 40 inches of the muslin, fold this to a width of 6½ or 7 inches, then cut bib and straps as indicated by the dotted lines.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Coke's Distinct Value in the House Furnace

Soft coal can never be burned in house-heating furnaces with such completeness of combustion as coke. When soft coal is used most of the volatile matter distilled from the coal escapes from the furnace unburned in the form of soot, tar, and combustible gases. Part of the soot and tar is deposited on the heating surfaces of the stove or furnace and in the flues and part escapes through the chimney as visible smoke. The tar and soot do not burn in the furnace because the furnace is usually too small and the temperature too low for maintaining their combustion. The residue left after the tar and soot have been driven from the coal is in the form of coke. It burns slowly and almost completely in the small furnace and the heat which gets into the house is mostly the heat that has been generated by burning this residue. Therefore, when soft coal is burned in the ordinary house-heating furnace the coal is first reduced to coke by driving off the volatile matter, most of which escapes unburned; then the coke burns in the furnace and heats the house. Driving off the volatile matter unburned not only causes a direct loss of heat but causes a great deal of dirt in the furnace, flues, boiler room, and also in the outside atmosphere. Since the volatile matter in soft coal is of negative value so far as heating the house is concerned, it is better to use a fuel that does not contain volatile matter. Such a fuel is coke.—Bureau of Mines.

City Holds Tercentenary

In celebration of its 300 years of existence as a royal burgh, the ancient city of Dornoch, Scotland, recently held a descriptive pageant and other festivities. A reproduction of the blessing of the fishermen's nets by an abbey of the Sixth century, a re-enacting of the Battle of Embo in the Eleventh century, and a repulse of the pillaging Danes by William, earl of Sutherland, were among the many tableaux. In the last of these the role of the Danish leader was played by the duchess of Sutherland. Other notables who took part included Lady Londonderry, Lady Ednam, Lord Chaplin, and Miss Elizabeth Leveson-Gower, who is the daughter of the present heir to the dukedom of Sutherland.

HARD ROADS AND MOTOR BUSES CUT DEEP INTO THE RAIL ROADS PASSENGER REVENUES

American railroads carried fewer passengers in 1928 than in any other one year since 1905, according to C. D. Forris, of the Western Railways' Committee on Public Relations, Chicago, in an address before the Lion's Club of Waukegan on Thursday night. "The number of persons riding on passenger trains steadily increased each year from 1890 to 1920," continued the speaker, "in which latter year the railroads carried more passengers than in any one other year in their history. The number of passengers then began to decline and has continued to do so ever since. In 1905 the roads carried 739,000,000 passengers; in 1920, 1,270,000,000, and in 1928, 787,000,000.

"This is a matter of grave concern to the American people, who are dependent upon good passenger service as well as satisfactory freight service. Today they have the best passenger service they ever enjoyed. The railroads, in the past decade, have not only greatly improved their freight service, to the great benefit of the people, but have likewise greatly improved their passenger service. Their passenger service, on the whole, is not only faster, safer and more comfortable than ever before, but it is more dependable and is furnished at a lower rate than has been charged since 1920. The population of the country has also steadily increased in the past decade, so that it might reasonably be expected that passenger travel would increase, instead of which it continues to decrease each year.

"The occasion for this situation is no doubt the very large increase in travel in private motor cars and public motor buses. This travel has grown very rapidly in recent years, due largely to the great increase in the mileage of hard-surfaced highways, which have been built by taxation, in which the railroads have heavily shared. If the public motor buses served to provide transportation facilities to communities not hitherto having them they would thus provide a needed service. The facts are, however, that a very large majority of these buses are operated in direct competition with the railroads and are, to some extent, at least, subsidized by state or federal taxation or by both because they do not pay adequately for the use of the highways.

"In 1927 the passenger service of our Western railroads was furnished at a loss of $36,000,000. Instead of recognizing that this condition can not go on indefinitely, however, the public continues to demand much greater investment on passenger account—as witness the demand for electrification in cities—and a material reduction in passenger revenues. A case in point is the present demand for abolition of the extra charge made for travel in Pullman cars, commonly known as the Pullman Surcharge. The railroads receive about $40,000,000 a year from this charge, of which our Western roads receive approximately $16,000,000. Those advocating the abolition of this charge have gone so far as demand that it be abolished by Act of Congress, although the Interstate Commerce Commission, the body by which such matters should be decided, has declared it to be a reasonable charge and one that should be continued.

"That the unsatisfactory earnings of the railroads are largely due to the subsidizing of competing transportation agencies cannot be successfully denied. By the investment of public funds in waterways and highways these agencies have been able materially to reduce the traffic of the railroads, both freight and passenger, whereas the railroads are not subsidized to the amount of a single dollar, but contribute materially, thru their constantly increasing tax payments, to the funds expended by the government in aid of their competitors. It is fair to ask whether or not this condition can go on indefinitely without great injury to the railroads, which are today, as they always have been, our most dependable and necessary transportation agency.

"This is a matter in which the general public is more directly interested than are the railroads. As before stated, the Western railroads are losing money from their passenger service. The people cannot afford to have the present passenger service impaired. It is as essential to them as is the freight service. A railroad must furnish both, and we have become so accustomed to superior service in each line that we will not be content to see either discontinued or even permitted to deteriorate.

"It is well understood that the loss from passenger operation must be paid from the revenues of the freight service. There is a constant demand for lower freight rates, and certainly the public would not consent to pay higher freight rates in order to maintain a superior passenger service, and, yet, this is what is likely to be necessary if the present trend in passenger service be continued. It will not do to say that passenger service is so expensive today because of the operation of luxurious trains between great commercial centers. In reality they are the only trains that come anywhere near paying their way. It is the local passenger train that has ceased to be profitable, but it must be continued in response to public demand.

"The railroads will continue their efforts to provide a uniformly satisfactory service, both freight and passenger, but have reason to hope that, as the public comes to understand the real facts respecting their operation, there will be a widespread demand that they be given equal opportunity, under the law, to earn a reasonable return upon the immense sum they have invested in their properties."

WRAPPED IN KARUNG

The skin in which Miss Lois Eckhart is wrapped is the largest Alpina Karung (Indian word for snake) skin in the United States. It is eighteen feet long, about eighteen inches wide, and is worth about one thousand dollars. Eve herself might have looked like this in the Garden of Eden, wrapped in the skin of an Alpina Karung. Of course, Eve did not have bobbed hair, nor did she wear a wrist watch and high-heeled footwear.

Showing the exclusive 2-speed rear axle gears. The gears are shown in low reduction. This provides three extra low speeds ranging down to 3½ miles an hour, with ten times as much pulling power over "high-high" speed. For regular driving, a shift of the axle-control lever at the driver's right changes to direct drive, providing 35 miles an hour with the same easy engine speed. This 2-speed rear axle converts extra speed into greater pulling power, or the greater pulling power into extra speed, as conditions demand.

Simplicity of cooling system is a feature of the new Ford

A COMPLETE water plant is a part of every automobile as it is a part of every modern city.

The purpose of this water plant is to keep the engine cooled to a temperature that will make it efficient in operation. If it were not for this, the cylinder walls would become overheated and the pistons refuse to operate.

The cooling system of the new Ford is particularly interesting because it is so simple and reliable.

When the radiator is full of water, the engine of the new Ford will not overheat under the hardest driving. Yet the water is so regulated that it will not impair engine operation by running too cold in winter.

The cooling surface of the Ford radiator is large, with four rows of tubes set in staggered position so that each receives the full benefit of the incoming air. The fan is of the airplane propeller type and draws air through the radiator at the rapid rate of 850 cubic feet per minute at 1000 revolutions per minute of the motor.

The hot water around the cylinder head is drawn to the radiator to be cooled by a centrifugal water pump of new design.

The entire cooling system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little attention.

The radiator should be kept full, of course, and drained once each month so that sediment will not collect and retard the free passage of water. In cold weather, a reliable anti-freeze solution should be added.

As owner and manager of this important water plant you should also see that the water pump and fan shaft are properly lubricated and the packing around the pump shaft kept in adjustment.

Hose connections may also need replacement after long service. For those little adjustments, it pays to call on the Ford dealer.

He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to do a thorough, competent job at a fair price.

SOME FACTS ABOUT HEARING FOUND IN LABORATORY TESTS

Adjusting Pitch on Vacuum Tube Oscillator in Audition Tests.

MANY interesting facts about hearing have been found at the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York. With vacuum tube oscillators and special telephone receivers to produce pure tones, many tests of various kinds have been made.

The faintest sounds that the human ear can hear are exceedingly weak, but these have been measured at various pitches over wide limits. The loudest sounds which can be heard without pain have also been determined, and an enormous range has been found between the faintest and loudest sounds which the ear is capable of hearing. At a pitch of 1,000 cycles, (or complete vibrations) per second, which is about two octaves above middle C on the piano, the intensity range of the ear is so great that the energy in the loudest bearable sound is ten million million times the energy in the faintest audible sound.

The lowest pitched note that the ear can hear and the highest were determined approximately. The lowest is about 20 cycles and the highest is about 20,000 cycles. This wide pitch range amounts to about ten octaves.

It is often asked whether the ear is more sensitive for low or high pitched tones. The experiments answered this question, on the whole, in favor of the high pitched tones, for it was found that the most sensitive region was from 1,000 to 5,000 cycles, between which limits the sensitivity was about the same.

The ear sensitivity of persons with defective hearing was also studied, and an accurate method for obtaining the proportion of the hearing lost and retained was found. Instruments called "audiometers" for making these tests were perfected and are now used by many ear specialists.

These studies of hearing were part of a general investigation of the clearness of speech on telephone connections. Much has been accomplished, and the scientists and electrical engineers are carrying on the work to make further advances.

His Accidental End

There are all sorts of ways of putting things, and some sound much better than others. For example, there is the case of the man of whom Lord Coleridge used to tell, whose father was hanged for highway robbery. Some one asked him how his father died. "Sir," said he "he fell from a scaffolding outside Newgate while he was talking to a clergyman."—Youth's Companion.

Conscience Not Mocked

He who commits a wrong will himself inevitably see the writing on the wall, though the world may not count him guilty.—Tupper.

After They Drop Money

As a means for reducing the number of suicides at Monte Carlo the management of the casino maintains what is called the "viaticum," a fund the object of which is to provide transportation home for every gambler who has lost all his money.

Sizes of Continents

Europe forms only about one-fourteenth of the land surface of the globe. Asia extends over nearly one-third of the land surface of the globe. Africa has about three times the area of Europe. North America is a little less than twice the size of Europe; and South America is a little more than 1½ times the size of Europe.

On Monday, January 14, after 35 years devoted largely to public service, Governor Small will complete his second term as chief executive of Illinois. Probably two of the most outstanding accomplishments of his administration are the construction of about 7,000 miles of hard road which form a network over the entire state, and the building of Illinois' section of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway. Other important features include an expansion through the department of public welfare in the state penal and welfare institutions with inmates rapidly increasing in number, prevention of diseases and epidemics through the state health department, eradication of bovine tuberculosis and control of plant disease by the department of agriculture, and the upbuilding of the Illinois state fair, now considered among the outstanding agricultural exhibits of the nation.

The working man has been cared for by the department of labor through passage and administration of various laws. Employment has been found free for nearly 1,300,000 persons, private employment agencies regulated, health and safety laws administered as to factories, compensation matters cared for by the industrial commission and various threatened strikes averted. The department of mines and minerals has done much for the coal mining industry of the state, regulating qualifications of workers and safety measures, with the explosion hazards reduced very materially. Tremendous increases in the insurance business and commerce in Illinois are reflected by the department of trade and commerce. In addition to its gigantic road program the department of public works and buildings has developed a comprehensive system of state parks. The department of registration and education covers a wide range of activity and shows progress in all its branches.

The building program of the state, except for hard roads, has been handled by the department of purchases and construction. Outside of the waterway and flood relief projects, the department has constructed buildings for state institutions, purchased supplies for their management reaching into many millions of dollars and claims a saving of thousands in state printing and purchasing by consolidating buying power. Sanitation, reforestation and promotion of recreational facilities have been chief aims of the department of conservation. Illinois has been brought into second place in conservation work in the nation.

The Illinois National Guard was reorganized following the war with selection of officers, housing, furnishing of equipment and training locations the chief problems. The personnel numbers more than 9,000. Other duties include distribution of war trophies and administration activities for the benefit of war veterans, including the bonus act.

"The coming generation on the farms of Illinois will be better trained and should be more successful because of the practical instruction now available." This encouraging observation is voiced by Stillman J. Stanard, director of agriculture and a member of the state board of vocational education. In acknowledging receipt of the 1928-29 directory and program of agricultural education, prepared by J. E. Hill, supervisor of agricultural education, and issued from the office of Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, Stanard writes as follows:

"I want to commend you upon the splendid showing made in your report. The increase in the number of agricultural classes from 15 in 1918 to 187 at present, with a relative expansion of enrollment, is indeed encouraging. From the report, we note there are 5,082 Illinois youngsters engaged in this study of agriculture. Along with this group, we consider the youngsters in the junior club work carried on by the farm bureau leaders, as the future agriculturalists of Illinois. Many of these students and club members will receive more advanced instruction at the University of Illinois. When we compare the opportunities surrounding youngsters of today with the efforts necessary to gain agricultural education years ago, it is natural to look forward to a future generation on the farms of Illinois, far better trained to carry on the farming business of the state."

The new city directory for Springfield shows the capital city has a population of 77,024, including 6,000 just outside the city's limits.

A balance of more than $45,000,000 will be in the state treasury when Treasurer Garrett D. Kinney retires from office January 14, and he will also have set a new record in the amount of money credited to the revenue fund on interest collected on state funds. During the two years he has been in charge of finances the total amount turned in by Mr. Kinney amounts to approximately $2,000,000, about half a million more than paid in by former treasurers. His final report will show the state in sound condition.

Elaborate plans for the inauguration ceremonies of Governor-Elect Louis L. Emmerson and other state officers at the state arsenal on January 14 are being completed under the direction of Adj. Gen. Carlos E. Black, who has announced that even the capacity of this huge building will be taxed, judging from the large number of delegations which have signified their intention of attending. Governor-Elect Emmerson, twenty-seventh executive of Illinois, will be the second governor to assume the oath of office in the arsenal, all other inaugurations until four years ago having been held in the house of representatives. The arsenal will be elaborately decorated with flags, bunting and smilax, and the back of the stage will be hung with a blue, gold-fringed curtain, forming a rich background for the impressive exercises. The militia will play an important part in the inauguration. The One Hundred Thirtieth infantry, under command of Col. Albert L. Culbertson, will constitute the armed escort to the inaugural party from the governor's mansion to the arsenal. The one Hundred Sixth cavalry, under command of Maj. Kenneth Buchanan, will be assigned to duty inside the arsenal during the ceremonies. The Naval militia of Peoria and the Eighth infantry, Springfield, will form a part of the parade. A public reception will be held at the executive mansion at 7 p. m., at which Governor and Mrs. Emmerson, with the other state officers and their wives, will receive. The inaugural ball, sponsored by the Hamilton club of Chicago, will be held at the arsenal, beginning at nine o'clock. For the use of Governor and Mrs. Emmerson, and the other state officers and their ladies, a large box will be built in the south balcony. This will be beautifully furnished and will be lighted by an overhead light from a chandelier of many crystals. Many organizations from all parts of the state are giving dinners early in the evening prior to the reception. The officers of the National Guard will give a dinner at the St. Nicholas hotel at five o'clock, at which the governor will be a guest. Friends of Secretary of State-Elect William J. Stratton will give a dinner in his honor to be tendered at the Abraham Lincoln hotel, which will be largely attended.

"Inquiries coming to this office indicate that the fifty-fifth annual convention of the Illinois State Dairy-men's association, to be held at Jacksonville, January 29, 30 and 31, will be unusually successful." Stillman J. Stanard, secretary of the organization, reports. "All of the dairy speakers on the program have accepted the invitation extended by the association's directors, and we look forward to a splendid meeting." The dairy convention program lists the following authorities who will speak on various dairy topics: Prof. R. E. Caldwell, formerly in charge of dairy extension, University of Purdue; C. S. Rhode, associate professor of dairy extension, University of Illinois; Charles Foss, dairy editor of Prairie Farmer; Prof. R. E. Muckelroy, dean of the college of agriculture, Southern Illinois Normal university; George Caven, publisher of Chicago Dairy Produce Journal; Prof. W. J. Fraser, University of Illinois. The state's program for bovine tuberculosis eradication, and an experiment in immunization against that disease will be discussed by Director Stanard of the state department of agriculture. Dairy cattle judging teams from 25 or 30 high schools will compete for prizes in scoring dairy cattle. Premiums are offered for the various age classes, herds and championships in the Holstein, Guernsey and Jersey breeds, and a representative list of entries from central Illinois communities is expected to swell the large number of exhibits.

A New Year's message filled with optimism for a year of prosperity and progress for the people of Illinois was issued by Governor-Elect Louis L. Emmerson. His statement said: "There is every reason to believe that 1929 will be a year of great prosperity for the nation and especially for the Middle West. Business and industry have confidence in the executive ability and sound judgment of President-Elect Hoover and there are indications everywhere that marked progress will be made in industrial and economic development. The farm problem, which means so much to Illinois and the Middle West, will be attacked with new vigor. Flood control, one of the major problems of the incoming administration, will be pushed. Progress will be made in Illinois toward completion of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway and it is hoped that an agreement can be reached for the construction of a ship canal from Chicago to the Atlantic seaboard, two projects which will bring the commerce of the world to our doors. The new year has much in store for us."

Ruth Ladd, aged twelve, of Ke-wanee, Henry county, won first place in the state spelling contest held in Springfield in connection with the convention of the Illinois State Teachers' association December 27-29. Second place was taken by Mary Elizabeth Wilson, aged thirteen, of Olney, Richland county, while the winner of third award was Elva Price of Lawrence county. Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, presented the medals. Banners were also presented to the schools represented by the successful spellers.

TOOTHsome DAINTIES

The young guinea fowl is a savory dish and one which is coming to be more often served.
Broiled Young Guinea Hen.—Split the fowl down the back after careful dressing. Brush with olive oil, season with salt and pepper and broil. Spread with butter and parsley finely chopped and creamed together. Garnish with watercress and mounds of cranberry jelly.

Orange Salad.—Peel tart oranges and cut into thin slices crosswise, arrange in overlapping slices and serve French dressing, using pineapple juice, a dash of lemon juice and olive oil, seasoning well with salt, cayenne and a half teaspoonful of sugar.

Fruit Cake.—Take one pound each of raisins, currants, sugar and flour. One-half pound of citron, one pound of butter, nine eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately; two teaspoonfuls of vanilla and the grated peel of a lemon, three-fourths of a pound of walnut meats. Sprinkle the fruit with flour, mix all together, fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and the flavoring. Steam two hours and bake one.

Caramel Pie.—To one quart of milk add the yolks of five eggs and the whites of two, well beaten; add five tablespoonfuls of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of caramel sirup, made by browning sugar and adding water to dissolve it. Add a bit of salt and a cupful of damson preserves. Pour into a pastry-lined plate and bake until firm. Cover with a meringue, using the other three egg whites and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Brown lightly.

Fish Kedgeree.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a casserole, add one-half cupful each of cooked rice and flaked halibut, two hard-cooked eggs finely chopped. Season with salt, pepper, lemon juice and butter. Heat in a hot oven. Serve with hard-cooked eggs cut into rings and sprinkle with chopped parsley. Serve on squares of buttered toast.

President Tyler's Pumpkin Pie.—Prepare the pastry as usual and fill with the following: Two eggs lightly beaten, one cupful of sour cream, one cupful of pumpkin, one tablespoonful of flour, one-half cupful of sugar, ginger, cinnamon, a little lemon rind or extract and one cupful of milk, a half teaspoonful of salt. Serve with whipped cream.

Seasonable Foods.
Try making some mince meat, using fresh lean pork. To four pounds of cooked meat add six pounds of tart apples chopped, one quart of cider and the usual spices and fruit to taste.

Scotch Vegetable Plum Pudding.—Mix well one pound of mashed potatoes, one-half pound of mashed carrots one pound of flour, one pound of currants, three-fourths of a pound of brown sugar, one pound of raisins, two ounces of suet, one nutmeg, one teaspoonful of salt and one egg. Mix as usual, put into a well-floured cloth and boil six hours.

Walnut Salad.—Cover twenty-four walnut meats with rich stock, one slice of onion, a bay leaf and simmer for twenty minutes; cool. Line salad bowl or plates with lettuce. Marinate twelve oysters with French dressing for an hour; serve on the lettuce topped with the walnut meats and serve with French dressing.

Lamb With Rice.—Roast one medium loin of lamb one hour, then cut into steaks. Boil one cupful of rice ten minutes, drain, add one quart of beef stock, a dash of nutmeg, one teaspoonful of salt, and simmer with the rice until it is tender. To one tablespoonful of butter and the yolks of three eggs, lightly beaten, add the steaks, dipping first into the butter, melted, then in the egg. Arrange in a dish and cover with rice. Bake one-half hour.

Chicken With Green Peppers.—Many cooks prefer fowl unstuffed, as the stuffing renders the flesh dry. Try this way of serving the stuffing: Take bread, sage, onion, egg, butter, salt and pepper and milk if needed to moisten the mixture. Fill green peppers with the seasoned mixture. Split a young fowl down the back and put into a baking pan, seasoning well with salt and pepper. Place the peppers around it and bake in a hot oven, basting the fowl and peppers often during the roasting.

Chicken Pie With Peppers.—Cook the young chicken until tender in water to cover, add three chopped green peppers and one can of mushrooms. Fill a lined pie plate with a rich biscuit dough, add the chicken, peppers and mushrooms and sufficient cream for moisture. Cover with the dough, make a vent and bake until brown.

Lesson for January 13

SIN

LESSON TEXT.—I John 1:5-2:6.
GOLDEN TEXT.—If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—Grieving God.
JUNIOR TOPIC.—Grieving God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—What Sin Is and Does.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Sin and Its Consequences.

There is much disparity between the subject and the Scripture unit selected for study. Since the plan is to present the subject topically, using the many texts, it is proper that we should first give a definition of sin.

The etymology of the word translated sin in both the Hebrew and the Greek signifies "to deviate from the way—to miss the mark"; therefore a going aside. Failure to measure up to a standard is sin. Sin is also the transgression of the law (I John 3:4). The positive meaning then is that sin is a transgression of the law. Deeper than all this is the condition of the soul, out of which all thought and actions spring. This is called by Paul concupiscence (Rom. 7:7, 8).

I. The Origin of Sin (Gen. 3:1-24).
Man was placed on probation in the Garden of Eden. This was necessary because Adam was created with the possibility of character, but not with character. This he could get only through testing. Free will, alternative choice, which Adam possessed as a creature bearing the likeness and image of God, made character possible and inevitable.

Character is the resultant of choice. The means used was most simple. God issued just one prohibition. Alongside the tree of good and evil was the tree of life. Satan, a personal being, appeared in the guise of a serpent. He insinuated doubt into Eve's mind and appealed to innocent appetite. She gazed upon and lusted after that which God had forbidden. Following this, she involved Adam in her sin. From this account we see that sin originated, so far as the race is concerned, in the free choice of the head of the race, and through the law of heredity has passed upon all mankind.

II. The Universality of Sin (Rom. 3:10-18).
By the use of numerous quotations from the Scriptures, Paul proves that every member of the race is guilty of sin. He does not admit of an exception.

III. The Fate of Sinners (Gen. 6:5-8).
The disobedience of man greatly displeased God and He resolved to destroy man from the face of the earth. God's nature is such that sin must be punished.

IV. The Source of Sin (Mark. 7:14-23).
All evil thinking and practice spring out of the heart of man. The heart stands for the very center and foundation of the personality. The reason men think vile thoughts is because of their vile nature, which is the result of original sin.

V. The Sins of Believers—I John 1:5-2:6.

1. How perceived (v. 5).
God is here declared to be light. Therefore sin is perceived through the glorious light of the Divine being. No one can see God without seeing himself a vile sinner. To claim fellowship with God while walking in darkness is the lie of life.

2. The Divine remedy for sin (v. 7).
It is the blood of Jesus Christ. Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sin.

3. The believer's responsibility (v. 9).

It is to confess his sin. It is only when we are conscious of our sins in the light of God that we are disposed to make confession of them.

4. God grants forgiveness and cleansing (vv. 9, 10).

Because of His provision in the atonement of Jesus Christ, God is able on the basis of justice to forgive the sinner who confesses his sin. Because of His faithfulness in dealing with His children on the basis of the finished work of Christ, He not only forgives, but He cleanses them from all sin.

5. Christ the believer's advocate (2:1, 2).

For believers to sin is not necessary, but the advocate who champions his cause in case of sin is the Lord Jesus Christ Himself, who on Calvary's cross made a propitiation for his sin.

6. Christ's followers obey Him (v. 5).
Those who have experienced God's saving grace render obedience to His Word.

The Love of Christ
A stream can rise no higher than its source. It takes the love of Christ coming into a man's heart to raise him above himself, sweep away the sins he cannot conquer, and fill him with peace and power.

Wealth

Wealth is a weak anchor and glory cannot support a man; this is the law of God, that virtue only is firm and cannot be shaken by a tempest.—Pythagoras.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

WHY?

WHY should you see our largest and best equipped training quarters? WHY should you see our list of over 4,000 Beauty Shops where we place you in positions? WHY do Mariniello operators, and Mariniello operators ONLY make $50 a week, and over? Write C. C. FULLER, Information Dept., Mariniello Beauty Shops, Chicago, Ill.

When a clock is wound up it goes, but it is different with any other business.

TO RESIST THE ATTACK—of colds or gripe—put your system and your blood in order. Build up your health with that splendid herbal tonic.

ic, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which has stood the test of sixty years of approval. The air we breathe is often full of germs, if our vitality is low we're an easy mark for colds or pneumonia. One who has used the "Discovery", or "G M D", writes thus: "Fort Wayne, Ind.—'When I would catch cold it just seemed to set up an irritation in my bronchial tubes, causing me to have a severe cough. I coughed so hard it racked my whole system. I would get so weak I could hardly do my work. I took a couple of bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and have never suffered from coughs since, and it built me up and strengthened me as well.'—Mrs. Florence Wagner, 418 Ross St. Fluid or tablets. All dealers. Write Dr. Pierce's Invalids Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free advice.

Those who go to the city and undertake to keep the pace can quit and say they don't see any sense in the pace.

Makes Life Sweeter

Too much to eat—too rich a diet—or too much smoking. Lots of things cause sour stomach, but one thing can correct it quickly. Phillips Milk of Magnesia will alkalize the acid. Take a spoonful of this pleasant preparation, and the system is soon sweetened.

Phillips is always ready to relieve distress from over-eating; to check all acidity; or neutralize nicotine. Remember this for your own comfort; for the sake of those around you. Endorsed by physicians, but they always say Phillips. Don't buy some thing else and expect the same results!

Tusks are present only in the males of the Asiatic elephants and are only about half as large as those found in African elephants. Both sexes of African elephants have tusks, which contribute to the dwindling of the species, as the females are as liable as the males to be killed for the sake of the ivory.

In Memoriam

RICK WILLIAM—In sad and loving memory of our dear father and husband who passed away three years ago, January 15, 1926. You had a future we could not help loving.

A heart that was purer than gold, And to those who knew you and loved you
Your memory will never grow cold!

You did not fail to do your best,
Your heart was true and tender;
You worked hard for those you left,
And ever will be remembered,
The sweetest memories are all we have left.

Of you, dear Dad, gone to rest,
